

LOCAL BRIEFS

MR. E. J. Martin, of Mt. Olive, was in the city to-day.

THE stock trade of Goldsboro is holding its own this season, as usual.

FARMERS everywhere are now busy with farming preparations for the new year.

Mr. Thos. Holmes is spending a few days, "off the road," with his family in this city.

Mrs. Jane Thompson is quite sick at her home in this city, her many friends regret to know.

Miss Lena Newell, of Castoria, is in the city visiting her cousins, Misses Jennie and Maggie Wells.

Mr. A. E. Epting has opened a furniture repair shop next to the fish market on East Centre street.

It was a pleasure to his many friends to greet Capt. J. E. Peterson on the street again to-day, after a ten days illness of the grip.

Mr. W. H. Shippman has resigned his position as bookkeeper at the Wayne Cotton Mill and has returned with his family to his former home in Canada.

THERE was fine lot of tobacco on the floor of the Farmers' Warehouse in this city to-day as has been on this market this season. The bidding was lively and the prices were away up.

MAJ. H. L. Grant made a flying trip to Washington, D. C., Saturday night and spent Sunday there; doubtless "mending his fences" in regard to his prospective position as Sergeant-at-Arms of the U. S. Senate.

ON Thursday and Friday afternoon of this week, at 4 o'clock, in the Baptist Sunday-School room, Miss Cora Blinn, of Chas. lotte, will deliver free lectures to women on "Health and How to Preserve it." All ladies are invited.

MR. Jack Grant, of Shine, was in the city to-day. He reports the farmers of his section doing well in their crops, and is making preparations for another crop and fighting the grip. He says the dread complaint is in almost every family in his neighborhood.

THE Republican and Populist office holders in this vicinity are getting mighty weary looking, as they huddle around the street corners and discuss together their several individual prospects and common probabilities. The invitation to the "pie counter" seems long to them in its coming.

MR. John H. Morris, formerly of the firm of Baker, Ister & Co., and well known to and popular with the trade of this section, is fitting up the old Argus building, next door to Messrs. H. and M. L. Lee, on West Walnut street, and will soon open up a full stock of heavy groceries and farmers' supplies.

MR. Joseph Isaacs left yesterday as a delegate from the lodge in this city to the Supreme Grand Lodge B. N. A. Britt, which convenes in Baltimore this week, and from there he will make an extensive trip through the North and East in the interest of his furniture and crockery house in this city.

MR. W. H. Billings, the genial and popular caterer of the Hotel K-nuon, received the sad news this morning by wire of the unexpected death of his little ten year old son at their home in Wilmington. Mr. Billings left this afternoon for home. Our entire community will sympathize with him deeply in his sad affliction.

The sad news was telegraphed to this city Monday morning of the death of Mr. John J. Gay, in Wilson, of consumption. The deceased had been in declining health for some months. He was quite a young man, of fine business attainments, and of possessing many friends, which made life for him bright with promise and buoyant of hope. His untimely death is, therefore, all the more sad.

The interment was made in Willow Dale cemetery in this city, the funeral taking place upon the arrival of the train from Wilson Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

JUST as an object lesson—and these are nothing new for Goldsboro—sustaining the claim of the ARGUS and the fact that Goldsboro is the best tobacco market in the State, we chronicle just one sale to-day on the floor of the Farmers' Warehouse—that of Mr. A. S. Fields, of Lenoir county, who realized from his raising on barely one acre and a half $250.82, and still has several hundred pounds left from the same ground. To say that Mr. Fields was satisfied but poorly expresses his gratification at having brought his tobacco to the Goldsboro market. He will come again, and keep on coming this season and next year, say all the time; and so will hundreds of others, as they realize how much it is to their advantage to bring their tobacco to this market.

I carry a full line of Dr. Earle S. Sloan's great Remedies, which are perfectly reliable. Sloan's Liniment cures Rheumatism, Dr. C. Shanon, Duggles, Goldsboro, N. C., dec 14/10.

A SADDENED HOME.

Mrs. W. H. Smith Passes Away Sunday Evening:

It becomes our sad duty this afternoon to announce the death of Mrs. W. H. Smith, which occurred Sunday evening at 8:25 o'clock, at their home on William street, in the presence of her devoted husband, children and other members of the family.

Mrs. Smith had been in declining health for many months, and had been the object of tenderest solicitude in the heart of her family, to whom the end was not unexpected, though their loss is none the less hard to bear, for the passing from their lives of her sweet and gentle presence means more than words can portray or human sympathy fathom; while the community will miss her sadly, she was so gentle and generous and kind to all. Her life was indeed edifying to all who came within the radius of its Christian influence, and she goes out from us as one whom we know has been called to the joys of her Lord, whose service was her delight from early life till the lengthening shadows of the Valley merged into the glorious light of His face, eternal in the Heavens.

All through her long illness she was uncomplaining, brave and resigned to the will of God, while ever thoughtful for others in their needs and solicitous for their comfort. It was this that made her life so beautiful and that makes her loss so sad to the heart-broken husband and devoted children and to all the household, to whom in this hour of sorrow and bereavement the sympathy of the entire community goes out in inexpressible tenderness.

Pikeville Letter.

DEAR ARGUS:—We are sorry to learn that Miss Lula Dees is quite sick at her home near here.

Misses Hattie and Della Edgerton and Miss Sallie Morrill, of Pinkney, were in town Sunday, as the guests of Mrs. W. B. Albright.

Mrs. Jonathan Garis has completed his new dwelling house at the West end of Main street and it is quite an ornament to that portion of town.

Our town commissioners have recently had the old street lamps taken down and have put new ones of the latest improved style in their places.

Her numerous friends will be pleased to learn that Miss Sallie Ham has recovered from her recent illness.

Mr. W. L. Pike and family, who for the past two months have been residing in your city, have moved back among us again, occupying Mr. A. J. Garis' former residence.

The weather Sunday was just delightful and the attendance at the churches in this section was unusually large.

Subject for discussion at our debate next Friday night: "Resolved that the stock law would be beneficial to Wayne county."

J. F. H. Pikeville, Feb. 9, '97.

NIGHT SESSION OF THE HOUSE.

Resolution introduced by Mr. Hancock to abolish the office of enrolling clerk and out Mr. Swinson was taken up and caused a warm and exciting debate. Duplin wanted to know the charge against Mr. Swinson. Blackthorn, he failed to carry out the terms of contract. Mr. Dockery attacked Mr. Swinson, saying the Attorney General had rendered an opinion against him. The Democrats took no part in the debate. A vote was called—yeas 57, nays 31. The resolution passed all readings with a "clinch."

The resolution requesting North Carolina Senators to secure the ratification arbitration treaty was adopted.

Bill introduced to prevent minors from entering barrooms and billiard rooms.

Attorney Day, representing the S-aboard, announces tonight that his side has asked for the withdrawal of two sections of the bill to annul the lease. The committee has not accepted Mr. Day's suggestion, General Council Henderson, of the Southern, Fab. Busbee, John W. Graham, Capt. Day, C. M. Busbee, Judge Avery, Judge MacRae and E. O. Burton, spoke before the committee this evening, and argument finally concluded. Much feeling was evinced. Capt. Day and side, Mr. Alexander, came near having a personal collision. It is now known that the committee will report in favor of the bill to annul.

PRITCHARD'S CLOSE CALL.

HE HAD HEART TROUBLE.

Mr. Bill Day Gives His Views on the North Carolina Situation—Thinks the Dissolution of the Populist Party is Certain—Butler Goes to the Bottom—The South and the Cab inet.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Mr. McKinley is likely to take care of his friends. His appointment of Gage for the Treasury, and Daves for Comptroller of the Currency, are proof positive of this. Their services at the St. Louis convention and previously have not been forgotten. The same applies to North Carolina, and it is said that none but original McKinley men need apply.

BILL DAY'S IDEA.

Capt. Bill Day thus hit off the North Carolina situation, talking to a Post reporter:

"The bitter Senatorial fight in our State will doubtless have far-reaching results. One effect is the dissolution of the Populist party. Political bargains and deals have been the direct cause of its destruction. It has been traded to death.

Very likely the Skinner wing of the Populists will hereafter go with the Republicans, and the Marion Butler faction will find their way back into the Democratic camp. There are about 10,000 good and patriotic men who became Populists from principle that may not ally themselves with either of the two old parties. This contingent, is, however, sick of the incompetent, not to say corrupt leadership that wrecked the organization.

"Another sure thing is the extinction of Marion Butler as a political factor. He is like a boy who, ignorant of the art of swimming, goes out into the deep water, trusting to a pair of goggles to keep him from sinking. He loses his life preservers and goes to the bottom."

"I think Butler has lost his gourd, and the water is beyond his depth. It was a very shabby bargain that he assented to, which gave the Republicans one Senator and the Populists one, but men will generally believe it was shabbier not to stand by the contract.

"The best feature to-day in North Carolina politics is the auspicious start of our new Governor, Hon. D. L. Russell. He is the best executive the State has had since the days of Zeb Vance. In Russell the people have a man who cannot be bribed or bullied into any line of policy, which his judgment or conscience pronounces wrong. I have always differed from him politically until last year, but have known and esteemed him since we were barefooted boys at school."

THEIR FEARS NEEDLESS.

Half a dozen or more United States Senators called on Senator Pritchard the day after his reply to Butler's attack was made public in the Washington news, and were anxious lest the Senator and Senator Butler might have a personal clash. Senator Pritchard appreciated their sympathy but laughed at their fears.

PRITCHARD'S CLOSE CALL.

Mr. Pritchard had really an unusually severe attack of heart trouble the other night. He is of a nervous temperament. In the Senate chamber he does not like to sit still, and is often seen striding rapidly along the circular aisle between the Senators' desks and the lounges where the Senators rest and relax. He chafes under restraint, and hence, after being cooped up with grip for a week after his return to Washington, he disregarded the advice of his friends and his physicians in his desire to get back into the Senate chamber. On Wednesday—a sunny day—a sort of bright parenthesis in Washington's recent disagreeable weather—he went up to the chamber, receiving congratulations of Senators, and attended to some business. The excitement was too great for a weak and nervous man. That night, or rather Thursday morning at 5 o'clock, he waked suddenly to find himself very cold. He arose, lit the gas, and found that he was as white as a sheet, and that his pulse and heart were hardly beating perceptibly. Ringing for a servant, he sent for a physician, and in the meantime, seated by the heater, he tried to force the circulation of the blood by beating and rubbing himself. He knew at the time that he was having a close call, and the physician confirmed his belief. He wired that day for Mrs. Pritchard, Senator Pritchard is a man who is greatly dependent on his wife in his home life. Now that she has returned with her bright, three-year-old son, William McKinley, the Senator is satisfied and happy.

NORTH CAROLINA POSTOFFICE APPOINTMENTS.

The nominations of the Democratic postmasters at Lenoir, Wilson, Rocky Mount, Warren, and Laurinburg are hung up in the Senate committee on post-offices. Senator Pritchard has requested that they be not acted upon until he can consider them, being prevented at present by illness.

THE ARBITRATION TREATY

Birmingham News.

On April twenty second, 1896, there was a largely attended Peace Conference held in Washington City, which appointed a permanent National Arbitration Committee, on which are active by serving such distinguished statesmen, jurists and diplomats as J. Randolph Tucker of Virginia, Charles E. Fenner of Louisiana, John W. Foster of Washington City, President Charles E. Eliot of Harvard College, Moorfield Storey of Massachusetts, Chancellor A. T. McGill of New Jersey, and William E. Dodge of New York, who is Chairman of the Committee.

This committee has issued a statement of their views concerning the Treaty between the United States and Great Britain, concluded January 11th, 1897, by Richard O'ny and Julian Pauncefote, which statement is worthy the careful perusal of every American citizen.

The origin of the treaty is stated as follows:

"From Washington's administration down to this day, arbitration has uniformly been a prominent feature of our National policy. Acting upon the conviction that justice is best secured by judicial methods, our Government has always stood among the nations as the champion of law, and the pending treaty is, in a very definite sense, the result of our initiative.

In 1890 Congress unanimously adopted a concurrent resolution requesting the President 'to visit from time to time, as he may deem proper, any occasion may arise, negotiations with any Government which the United States has or may have diplomatic relations, to the end that any difference or disputes arising between the two Governments which cannot be adjusted by diplomatic agency may be referred to arbitration and be pacifically adjusted by such means.' In 1892 the British House of Commons expressed the hope that Her Majesty's Government would lend their ready co-operation to the Government of the United States, upon the basis of the foregoing resolution." The pending Treaty by which the two Governments agree to submit to arbitration, under certain limitations, all questions in difference between them which they may fail to adjust by diplomatic negotiations, follows almost the precise words of the resolution of Congress.

"None but the most cogent reasons could justify the rejection of a Treaty thus negotiated in direct response to our own invitation."

The provisions of the treaty are thus tersely given: "The treaty provides different methods for the various cases arising. "If pecuniary claims are to be submitted to a tribunal consisting of jurists of repute, three or five in number, each Government naming one member of the Court, if it consists of three persons, or two members, if it consists of five. The remaining member is to be selected by those first named, or if they cannot agree, by the joint action of the Supreme Court of the United States and the Judicial Committee of the British Privy Council. Finally, and only in the event of these bodies being unable to unite in a selection, the third or fifth member is to be named by the King of Sweden and Norway."

"Other matters of difference not involving territorial claims, are also to be submitted to the tribunal of five, constituted as above; but, whenever it is found that the determination of any dispute necessarily involves the principles of a question of grave importance, affecting the National rights of either party as distinguished from the private rights whereof it is merely the international representative, then the dispute is to be referred to the tribunal provided for the adjudication of territorial claims."

"This tribunal is to consist of three American and three British Judges named by the President of the United States and the Queen of Great Britain respectively. There is no umpire. The award of this tribunal is not to be final unless agreed upon by a majority of not less than five to one of its members. But if there should be a less majority, the award may also be final if both powers acquiesce. If either protests against it as erroneous, the award will be of no validity. It is further provided that in such cases of disagreement, there shall be no recourse to hostile measures of any description, until the mediation of one or more friendly powers have been invoked."

"The treaty is to remain in force for five years, and as much longer as the two governments desire—either being at liberty to terminate it after July 1st, 1902, by merely giving notice. There will, therefore, be full opportunity for revision if, after a fair trial experience shows defects in the practical working of the scheme."

Objections to the treaty are disposed of as follows: "The objections to the treaty which have come to the notice of this committee, have received careful and respectful consideration. We believe that they are almost entirely owing to an imperfect study, or a misapprehension of its provision or of their possible effect."
